

The Natural Approach to Paw Care

Natural Paws is excited to announce two new products coming to the Sweet Pea's Paws line! And we're asking our fans to help us find the perfect names for our new puppies.

Here's how it works. Read on to learn about the new products, and then dream up the best name you can. Email your submissions to SweetPea@NaturalPaws.net, by June 30, 2009. Winning submission will receive a gift package containing the full line of Sweet Pea's Paws Products. The guidelines are as follows:

- All names to be considered must fit the format of: "Sweet Pea's _____ Paws"
- Names of existing products or businesses are automatically disqualified
- Profane language in the name is automatically disqualified
- Names should be a reflection of the product described
- Silly plays-on-words are encouraged, especially dog-related ones

You know and love Sweet Pea's TenderPaws, the original in paw pad care. It has an unforgettable spa-like aroma; some credit the lavender essential oil, while others notice the hint of tea tree oil. It moisturizes, soothes, and replenishes the paw pads for what's to come.

New Paw-Product A (we'll call it "Sweet Pea's SaziPaws" for now, to honor the most active family dog I know) has been developed for the rugged mountain dog. It contains essential oils and extracts, carefully selected to promote strengthening & rebuilding of heavily used paw pads. The aroma is woodsy, the feel is light, and it won't slow you or your dog down.

New Paw-Product B (we'll call it "Sweet Pea's SakiPaws" for now, since Saki is the most sensitive pup I know) is our offering to the sensitive or allergic dog. Containing none of the more common canine allergens such as soy, wheat, or corn, it has a very light, fresh citrus-like aroma.

Thanks for playing, we can't wait to see your creative genius!
